Hang Line is a unique concept within over saturated market games, based around overused concepts such as base-building, gem matching, and so on. Hang Line deserves the opportunity to present as many consumers as possible simply because of its stupid-fun gameplay (no offense). In addition, I appreciate the mitigation of micro transactions within the game. This is compared to other apps in the App Store. I also love the tone of the story, developers don't take the game too seriously, which leaves room for funny plot development like movies based around goats and mad scientists blowing stuff up. In general, the Hang Line is addicting and fresh in the game, I hope that more content is included. I don't know if it's all phones, but I can't express how smooth it is on the iPhone XR it's just incredibly smooth I don't think I have any other game that has it smooth and clean. although I like things organized and I have to agree that the home screen and shop are a bit full and I love it when it got a little more scattered. But apart from that, my opinion is this one of the best games, and I really hope it continues to be a great game! And I would like to applaud everyone who worked on this game, it's truly incredible! Overall, really nicely made the game. It's fun to see your character flop around because a mountain lion tackle you or a goat kicked at you. The lack of ads is fantastic (except if you try to continue vs. start level over) because you die a lot of 🐼 gadgets are cool, and make it a little easier, but I never use them because the only way to get more is to buy them for real money as far as I know. The two things that keep it at 5 stars are there must be more unlockables. There are some helicopters to choose from, but only three characters? To match the currency could be used to as well or perhaps get widgets. Other than that the game is addictive and easy to learn, difficult to master. Thanks for the feedback from Reigningpandas!
